

Brothers and Sisters Around the World

During my first short-term mission trip to Mozambique, Africa in the fall of 2003, one evening our team took a generator, projector and screen to an outlying village. We set up in the center of the village and showed The Jesus Film to about 150 local Mozambicans. After the movie, most of them went home, but about 20 local Christians stayed with us for a while. The evening was warm and there was distant lightning way off on the horizon. We formed a circle, sang, and prayed together. That evening really impressed on me the universality of Christ's Church. We were brothers and sisters from very different parts of the world and different cultures, bonded together by our common faith in Jesus Christ. The trip to Mozambique and that evening had a huge impact on my life and faith and I am so thankful for the experience.
